You may need to pay an occasional fee to use the service. Some of these services are free for non-commercial use. However, use of commercial service may be subject to fees. 2. Most free services require you to install some sort of video program on your computer. Internet TV servers may require additional software to provide your computer with access to the online channels. In addition, the server will always need a continuous connection to the Internet to provide these channels. If you cancel your Internet connection, these channels will be lost. 3. In many countries, TV is subject to government restrictions. Those regulations may prevent viewing of certain channels. 4. There are other services available over the Internet which can provide similar free programming. See The Official Home Page of the International Free TV for more information. 5. All files that can be found on our servers are available for free download. We do not share or sell any information about our visitors. 6.
